

Stages of Loss

There is a range of three general types of emotions that people tend to feel in response to a very upsetting experience. Most people go through some or all of these before they get to a state of acceptance or resolution. You may feel each of these different feelings at different times, and this is completely normal.

Traumatic event

